Zach Vires, owner/operator of Vires Excavation and Concrete Inc. of Deputy, worked Sunday to position rebar ahead of this week's concrete pour on the foundation for the new Deputy Volunteer Fire Department there. The fire department and its equipment were destroyed by fire in December 2018 but construction on a bigger and better replacement facility began in December 2020 after months of negotiation, insurance settlements, grant applications and fundraisers.

Work started on the site in December, two years after the former department and its equipment were destroyed by fire in December 2018. Vires said once the foundation is completed, the floor plan of the new structure should take shape quickly. Above right: The footprint for the new Deputy Volunteer Fire Department is taking shape on the facility. The fire department, currently based in temporary housing, has been rebuilding its firefighting equipment through donations and purchases over the last two years and now hopes to finish construction of a new building by spring.

Carroll Detention Center reports COVID outbreak

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A post-holiday spike in COVID-19 infections resulted in a record number of new cases last week in Kentucky including an outbreak among inmates at the Carroll County Regional Detention Center in Carrollton. Carroll County Jailer John Proctor issued a statement on the detention center outbreak on the jail's Facebook page Friday night, noting that so far the infection involves only a few of the jail's current 169 inmates, symptoms are mild and the staff is working with the local Three Rivers District Health Department to contain the outbreak. "Unfortunately, the Carroll County Detention Center has had an outbreak with the COVID-19 virus. The Three Rivers Health Department is involved and are guiding us through the monitoring of all inmates in the facility," Proctor wrote in his statement. "There has been only minor symptoms with only a small portion of the rather large number of inmates testing positive with most showing NO symptoms at all but we will closely monitor all inmates until we get through this." Proctor went on to add that as of Friday night "all inmates have been tested with the results of today's test to arrive within a couple of days. I went to all cells today personally checking temps on each inmate and assuring them that the health department, myself, and the staff are there to get them through this. Just know if your loved ones are in there they are getting the medical care they need. As you pray please include the inmates and my staff in your prayers." Kentucky saw a spike in COVID numbers statewide last week with all but one of the state's 120 counties — remotely isolated Hickman

Hanover police make drug arrest

Suspect attempted to flee from officers

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison man has been charged with possession of methamphetamine and paraphernalia and resisting law enforcement after he attempted to run from Hanover Police Officers Thursday at a local business. Hanover Police were attempting to serve an arrest warrant on Taylor Lane Madden, 24, at Bentley & Son Auto Sales, 3250 West Clifty Drive on Madison's hilltop, when Madden attempted to run from the officers. The officers contacted Madden at the entrance of the business at about 5:30 p.m., to serve the warrant, but he walked away and then fled by running into another area of the building. The officers were able to apprehend Madden in the garage area of the business and a subsequent search of the area discovered a fanny pack that contained methamphetamine and other illegal drug-related items. Madden, who is not an employee of Bentley and Son, was charged with dealing in methamphetamine, a Level 2 felony, and resisting law enforcement. He was later lodged in the Jefferson County Jail on preliminary charges of possession of methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony, possession of paraphernalia and resisting law enforcement, both Class A misdemeanors, as well as on the original bench warrant for Jefferson County. Bond was set at $10,000 cash.

Pope Francis says women can read at Mass, but still can't be priests

BY NICOLE WINFIELD ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROME — Pope Francis changed church law Monday to explicitly allow women to do more things during Mass, granting them access to the most sacred place on the altar, while continuing to affirm that they cannot be priests.

Francis amended the law to formalize and institutionalize what is common practice in many parts of the world: that women can be installed as lectors, to read the Gospel, and serve on the altar as eucharistic ministers. Previously, such police officer in a doorway, his twisted face and screams captured on video. They mortally wounded another officer with a blunt weapon and body-slammed a third over a railing into the crowd.

"Hang Mike Pence!" the insurrectionists chanted as they pressed inside, beating police with pipes. They demanded House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's County, the least densely populated county in the state, along the Mississippi River in far western Kentucky — now in the “red” critical zone in terms of community infection.

Carroll County reported a single day record of 60 news cases on Friday — due in part to the detention center infection — to now have 676 cases and seven deaths throughout the pandemic. Neighboring Trimble County has reported 435 cases and five deaths and is now accepting appointments for residents age 70 and over to get the COVID-9 vaccine.

Kentucky reported a one-day record of 5,742 new cases last Wednesday — including 34 new deaths statewide— and a second highest 4,911 new cases Thursday with another 37 deaths.

The Commonwealth followed up with 4,750 new cases and 13 more deaths on Friday to top out at more than 15,000 new cases in just three days as the state’s overall case load climbed to 303,625 since the pandemic began in March 2020 with 39,006 residents recovered and 2,901 total deaths.

“We are now seeing a real and significant increase in cases and positivity rate from people’s gatherings over the holidays,” Gov. Andy Beshear said during a briefing in which he urged the public to follow health guidelines.

Dr. Steven Stack, the state’s public health commissioner, said a third virus surge was halted before the holidays, but over Thanksgiving and Christmas, “people socialized and they spread disease in ways that are now resulting in an increase in our positivity rate.”

Beshear said vaccinations in the state have accelerated, with more than 47,000 doses administered over three days with a total of 107,799 doses administered through Friday.

Meanwhile in Indiana, 5,127 new cases and 18 new deaths were reported Saturday to up the state’s overall infection numbers to 563,653 positive cases and 8,613 deaths.

It was reported that Jefferson County had 21 new cases and no new deaths with 2,362 infections overall and 38 deaths. Switzerland County had nine new cases and no new deaths with 574 cases overall and five deaths. Both counties are listed in the “red” critical zone in terms of community infection rate.

roles were officially reserved to men even though exceptions were made.

Francis said he was making the change to increase recognition of the “precious contribution” women make in the church, while emphasizing that all baptized Catholics have a role to play in the church’s mission.

But he also noted that doing so further makes a distinction between “ordained” ministries such as the priesthood and diaconate, and ministries open to qualified laity. The Vatican reserves the priesthood for men.

The change comes as Francis remains under pressure to allow women to be deacons — ministers who perform many of the same functions as priests, such as presiding at weddings, baptisms and funerals. Currently, the ministry is reserved for men even though historians say the ministry was performed by women in the early church.

Francis has created a second commission of experts to study whether women could be deacons, after a first one failed to reach a consensus.

Advocates for expanding the diaconate to include women say doing so would give women greater say in the ministry and governance of the church, while also helping address priest shortages in several parts of the world.

Opponents say allowing it would become a slippery slope toward ordaining women to the priesthood.

Phyllis Zagano, who was a member of the pope’s first study commission, called the changes important given they represent the first time the Vatican has explicitly and through canon law allowed women access to the altar. She said it was a necessary first step before any official consideration of the diaconate for women.

“This is the first movement to allow women inside the sanctuary,” said Zagano. “That’s a very big deal.”

Noting that bishops have long called for such a move, she said it opens the door to further progress. “You can’t be ordained as deacons unless you’re installed as lectors or accolytes,” said Zagano, a professor of religion at Hofstra University.

Lucetta Scaraffia, the former editor of the Vatican’s women magazine, however, called the new changes a “double trap.” She said they merely formalize what is current practice, including at papal Masses, while also making clear that the diaconate is an “ordained” ministry reserved for men.

“This closes the door on the diaconate for women,” she said in a phone interview, calling the change “a step backward” for women.

whereabouts, too. They hunted any and all lawmakers: “Where are they?” Outside, makeshift gallows stood, complete with sturdy wooden steps and the noose. Guns and pipe bombs had been stashed in the vicinity.

Only days later is the extent of the danger from one of the darkest episodes in American democracy coming into focus. The sinister nature of the assault has become evident, betraying the crowd as a force determined to occupy the inner sanctums of Congress and run down leaders — Trump’s vice president and the Democratic House speaker among them.

This was not just a collection of Trump supporters with MAGA bling caught up in a wave.

That revelation came in real time to Rep. Jim McGovern, D-Mass., who briefly took over proceedings in the House chamber as the mob closed in Wednesday and the speaker, Rep. Nancy Pelosi, was spirited to safer quarters moments before everything went haywire.

“I saw this crowd of people banging on that glass screaming,” McGovern told The Associated Press on Sunday. “Looking at their faces, it occurred to me, these aren’t protesters. These are people who want to do harm.”

“What I saw in front of me,” he said, “was basically home-grown fascism, out of control.”

Pelosi said Sunday “the evidence is that it was a well-planned, organized group with leadership and guidance and direction. And the direction was to go get people.” She did not elaborate on that point in a “60 Minutes” interview on CBS.

The scenes of rage, violence and agony are so vast that the whole of it may still be beyond comprehension. But with countless smartphone videos emerging from the scene, much of it from gloating insurrectionists themselves, and more lawmakers recounting the chaos that was around them, contours of the uprising are increasingly coming into relief.

THE STAGING

The mob got explicit marching orders from Trump and still more encouragement from the president’s men.

“Fight like hell,” Trump exhorted his partisans at the staging rally. “Let’s have trial by combat,” implored his lawyer, Rudy Giuliani, whose attempt to throw out election results in trial by courtroom failed. It’s time to “start taking down names and kicking ass,” said Republican Rep. Mo Brooks of Alabama.

Criminals pardoned by Trump, among them Roger Stone and Michael Flynn, came forward at rallies on the eve of the attack to tell the crowds they were fighting a battle between good and evil and they were on the side of good. On Capitol Hill, Republican Sen. Josh Hawley of Missouri gave a clenched-fist salute to the hordes outside the Capitol as he pulled up to press his challenge of the election results.

The crowd was pumped. Until a little after 2 p.m., Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell was at the helm for the final minutes of decorum in partnership with Pence, who was serving his ceremonial role presiding over the process.

Both men had backed Trump’s agenda and excused or ignored his provocations for four years, but now had no mechanism or will to subvert the election won by Biden. That placed them high among the insurrectionists’ targets, no different in the minds of the mob than the “socialists.”

“If this election were overturned by mere allegations from the losing side, our democracy would enter a death spiral,” McConnell told his chamber, not long before things spiraled out of control in what lawmakers call the “People’s House.”

THE ASSAULT

Thousands had swarmed the Capitol. They charged into police and metal barricades outside the building, shoving and hitting officers in their way. The assault quickly pushed through the vastly outnumbered police line; officers ran down one man and pummeled him.

In the melee outside, near the structure built for Joe Biden’s inauguration on Jan. 20, a man threw a red fire extinguisher at the helmeted head of a police officer. Then he picked up a bullhorn and threw it at officers, too.

The identity of the officer could not immediately be confirmed. But Capitol Police officer Brian Sicknick, who was wounded in the chaos, died the next night; officials say he had been hit in the head with a fire extinguisher.

Shortly after 2 p.m., Capitol Police sent an alert telling workers in a House office building to head to underground transportation tunnels that crisscross the complex. Minutes later, Pence was taken from the Senate chamber to a secret location and police announced the lockdown of the Capitol. “You may move throughout the building(s) but stay away from exterior windows and doors,” said the email blast. “If you are outside, seek cover.”

At 2:15 p.m., the Senate recessed its Electoral College debate and a voice was heard over the chamber’s audio system: “The protesters are in the building.” The doors of the House chamber were barricaded and lawmakers inside it were told they may need to duck under their chairs or relocate to cloakrooms off the House floor because the mob has breached the Capitol Rotunda.

Even before the mob reached sealed doors of the House chamber, Capitol Police pulled Pelosi away from the podium, she told “60 Minutes.”

“I said, ‘No, I want to be here,’” she said. “And they said, ‘Well, no, you have to leave.’ I said, ‘No, I’m not leaving.’ They said, ‘No, you must leave.’” So she did.

At 2:44 p.m., as lawmakers inside the House chamber prepared to be evacuated, a gunshot was heard from right outside, in the Speaker’s Lobby on the other side of the barricaded doors. That’s when Ashli Babbitt, wearing a Trump flag like a cape, was shot to death on camera as insurrectionists railed, her blood pooling on the white marble floor.

The Air Force veteran from California had climbed through a broken window into the Speaker’s Lobby before a police officer’s gunshot felled her.

Back in the House chamber, a woman in the balcony was seen and heard screaming. Why she was doing that only became clear later when video circulated. She was screaming a prayer.

Within about 10 minutes of the shooting, House lawmakers and staff members who had been cowering during the onslaught, terror etched into their faces, had been taken from the chamber and gallery to a secure room. The mob broke into Pelosi’s offices while members of her staff hid in one of the rooms of her suite.

“The staff went under the table barricaded the door, turned out the lights, and were silent in the dark,” she said. “Under the table for two and a half hours.”

On the Senate side, Capitol Police had circled the chamber and ordered all staff and reporters and any nearby senators into the chamber and locked it down. At one point about 200 people were inside; an officer armed with what appeared to be a semi-automatic weapon stood between McConnell and the Democratic leader, Sen. Chuck Schumer.

Authorities then ordered an evacuation and rushed everyone inside to a secure location, the Senate parliamentary staff scooping up the boxes holding the Electoral College certificates.

Although the Capitol’s attackers had been sent with Trump’s exhortation to fight, they appeared in some cases to be surprised that they had actually made it in.

When they breached the abandoned Senate chamber, they milled around, rummaged through papers, sat at desks and took videos and pictures. One of them climbed to the dais and yelled, “Trump won that election!” Two others were photographed carrying flex cuffs typically used for mass arrests.

But outside the chamber, the mob’s hunt was still on for lawmakers. “Where are they?” people could be heard yelling.

That question could have also applied to reinforcements — where were they?

At about 5:30 p.m., once the National Guard had arrived to supplement the overwhelmed Capitol Police force, a full-on effort began to get the attackers out.

Heavily armed officers brought in as reinforcements started using tear gas in a coordinated fashion to get people moving toward the door, then combed the halls for stragglers. As darkness fell, they pushed the mob farther out onto the plaza and lawn, using officers in riot gear in full shields and clouds of tear gas, flashbangs and percussion grenades.

Madison boys blow out Scottsburg

Cubs improve record to 7-2

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison boys basketball ran its win streak to three-straight — all against sectional foes — with two double-digit victories over the weekend.

On Friday, the Cubs pulled away in the second half to beat Scottsburg 71-49 in front of a sparse crowd. On Saturday, Madison headed to Charlestown and came away with a 79-58 win.

The two wins, coupled with a victory over Corydon on Jan. 2, have done a great deal to erase the painful memory of two losses in the Jefferson County Invitational Tournament just before the New Year, but Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson knows that his team still has a way to go to get where it wants to be.

“One of the things you have to learn in life is that you have to adapt because man, things constantly change and you may find yourself in positions that you are not familiar with but if you have the coping skills and can persevere, you typically come out pretty good,” Wilkerson said. “That’s what our kids are going through and have gone through. Every day, even if it’s a small step, as long as you’re moving forward, you continue to build.”

Madison (7-2) had trouble shaking Scottsburg on Friday night, leading only 18-17 after the first quarter. But the Cubs took control from the second quarter on, leading 35-26 at halftime and 56-40 after three quarters to cruise to the win.

The Cubs’ offense

David Campbell
Madison’s Luke Miller (12) launches a shot over Scottsburg’s Treyton Owens (14) during Friday’s game at home.

hummed all night to the tune of 53% (28-for-53) shooting from the floor overall and 12-of-19 (63%) from the free-throw line. Madison was only 3-of-10 on 3-point shots, but outscored the Warriors 42-20 in the paint and did a good job of attacking the rim.

Jackson Falconberry posted a double-double of 15 points and 15 rebounds to lead Madison and drew praise from his coach for his play.

“He’s growing into the person that we believe can be a game-changer for us,” Wilkerson said.

“He’s athletic, he’s got the body, he’s got the mind, he’s got all of the intangibles and all of the tools. Now, we’re hoping that he continues to grow because he gives us a different element. He’s a game-changer.”

Luke Ommen scored a game-high 17 points and also had eight rebounds for the Cubs while Kaden Oliver had 14 points on 5-of-8 shooting and three assists. Nick Center posted an impressive line of eight points, 10 assists, seven rebounds and two steals while Luke Miller had eight points and Parker Jones scored seven.

Treyton Owens scored 15 points and Kody Clancy had 13 to lead Scottsburg (2-8), which shot 39% (20-for-52) from the floor.

Madison wasted little time in seizing control of its game against Charlestown Saturday, jumping out to a 24-14 lead after the first quarter and never looking back. The Cubs led 35-24 at halftime and steadily built that lead over the final 16 minutes.

Luke Miller hit 9-of-13 shots from the floor and 8-of-11 from the arc and scored 31 points to lead all scorers. Jones had 14 points and seven rebounds, Oliver scored 10 points and six assists and Falconberry and Center each scored eight points.

Madison shot a sizzling 63% (29-for-46) from the floor, including 11-of-19 from 3-point range and 10-of-14 from the line. The Cubs also had a 27-18 advantage in rebounding.

Charlestown (2-6) shot 50% (21-for-42) from the floor but was outscored 33-12 from the arc. Chase Benner scored 12 points and Ty Crase had 11 to lead the Pirates.

Madison will open Hoosier Hills Conference play with two road games this week. The Cubs head to Bedford North Lawrence tonight for a varsity-only contest that will begin at 6 p.m. and then travels to New Albany on Friday.

Cub swimmers dominate January Invitational

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Liam Roney set a school record and Madison’s swim teams dominated the competition to win their own January Invitational Saturday at home on Senior Day.

The Cubs scored 609.5 points combined to easily outdistance runner-up Oldenburg’s 413.5 points in the annual event. South Ripley was third with 326 and Switzerland County was fourth with 210.

By team, Madison’s boys scored 342.5 points, Oldenburg was second with 173.5, South Ripley was third with 116 and Switzerland was fourth with 72. The Madison girls had 267 points, Oldenburg scored 240, South Ripley 210 and Switzerland 138.

“We continue to see hard work pay off for the kids. This is the stretch of the season where you see who has the grit and determination to push through the aches, pains, mental blocks, and frustrations to trust the process to work as we have planned,” Madison coach Ashley Schutte said. “It is so encouraging to see them enjoying their time together, pushing one another, and encouraging each other to be the very best they can be for themselves and our team.”

Roney’s record came in the 200-yard free-style, a mark that had stood since 1986. Roney won the race in 1:53.38, one of nine wins the Cubs had on the day.

Other wins for the Madison boys were: Justin Banks, 200 IM, 2:08.31 and 100 breast, 1:08.14; Trenton Schmidt, 100 fly, 1:00.77; Leighton Wielgoszinski, 500 free, 5:17.11 (personal best); Carter Schutte, 100 back, 58.96; Schutte, Banks, Roney and Jack Kelsey, 200 medley relay, 1:47.12 (best time); Roney, Schutte, Gavin McMahon and Banks, 200 free relay, 1:36.90; and Schmidt, Wielgoszinski, Kelsey and Schutte, 400 free relay, 3:53.15.

Madison’s girls claimed eight wins on the day. Winners were: Emily Nay, 100 fly, 1:07.74; 100 back, 1:12.00; Katie Royce, 200 free, 2:21.85 and 500 free, 6:24.90; Callie Anderson, 200 IM, 2:50.93; Andie Royce-Miller, Anderson, Nay and Trinity Stoner, 200 medley relay, 2:16.05; Nay, Brett Cahall, Royce and Stoner, 200 free relay, SEE SWIMMERS/PAGE A10

Trimble girls fall to Owen 64-33 in All ‘A’ semifinals

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Owen County blew open the game in the second quarter and rolled to a 64-33 win over Trimble County in the semifinals of the girls All “A” Classic Eighth Region Tournament Friday at Carroll County.

The Raiders stayed with the favored Rebels for the first few minutes but trailed 15-6 after the first quarter. Owen opened the second period with seven-straight points, gave up a 3-pointer to Trimble’s Emma Ginn, then scored 14 more points as part of a 23-7 rally that blew the game open.

While the loss was far from ideal, Trimble coach Kerrie Stewart said that it was something her team can build on as the short season gets under way.

“We knew that they were going to come out and give is that punch and the key was how we were going to respond to it,” Stewart said. “We got a little down and got away from the things that we were trying to do. We got caught up in one on one dribbling and our spacing got bad and we lost our intensity on defense. And that’s what we need to do. If we can keep up our intensity, when the other things aren’t going well, at least we can stay in the game.”

Owen County (2-2) spent the game determined not to let the Raiders’ leading scorer Shelby Wilcoxson beat them and for the most part succeeded. Wilcoxson, who scored 16 points in Trimble’s win over Gallatin County on Monday, scored just seven on Friday and only two in the first half.

With Wilcoxson bottled up, the Raiders had little offense in which to combat the Rebels. Sophomore Emma Ginn did her best to take up the slack, scoring nine of Trimble’s 11 points in the first half but it wasn’t nearly enough.

“Everybody in the region right now thinks that if you take Shelby Wilcoxson out of the game, the Lady Raiders lose. We’re not willing to let that happen,” Stewart said. “We’ve got to find ways to help Shelby get involved in the game certainly, but the only way that happens is if the others step up. And when the others step up, it allows Shelby to open up. And when Shelby opens up, that allows that of others. It was a very teachable moment today.”

Trimble (1-1) trailed 38-11 at halftime and 52-18 after three quarters when the Raiders put together their best stretch of the game, outscoring Owen 15-12 to avoid a running clock.

Ginn finished with nine points to lead Trimble while freshman Addison Edmondson scored eight. Elise Beeles came off the bench to score four points in the fourth quarter.

Gracie Ferguson scored 17 points and Destiny Goodrich added 13 points to lead Owen.

Owen faced Walton-Verona in the championship game on Saturday and lost 51-48.

Trimble returns to action with a busy week. The Raiders hosted Iroquois on Monday before crossing the Ohio River today to face Switzerland County. Trimble then travels to North Bullitt on Wednesday and hosts Highlands Latin on Saturday.

A System For Achieving Market-Protected Income Security

Layin’ it on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Consider these ideas as you work toward greater lifelong income certainty, regardless of what the market does. Being informed provides more options.

- Steve Dybwad

An annual financial review will help clarify whether your existing portfolio allocation aligns with your needs and objectives.

Retirement is a timeline of “decumulation,” when people draw money from income sources they have built up over many years. It makes sense to review your plans and strategies each year and ensure you are preserving your life savings so they can be tapped for dependable income streams during retirement. Do you currently have a wealth accumulation strategy in place, or is your strategy tailored toward preserving what you have accumulated? If retirement is a near-term milestone, within five years out, each year you may plan to transition some of your investments from a growth-focused financial strategy to one emphasizing wealth protection.

As retirement approaches, consider securing the “safe money” portion of your retirement portfolio. In retirement planning, “safe money” is the money you cannot afford to lose. For many people, that encompasses money to pay for their retirement lifestyle. Monthly living expenses such as housing, clothing, health care costs, and hobbies – from your financial requirements in retirement.

Safe money options are based on the guarantees that make them safe.

- US Treasuries: guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the United States Government
- Bank products guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)
- Insurance company annuities guaranteed by each state’s insurance guarantee fund (amount of the guarantee is state of residence specific)

Evaluate your financial circumstances in terms of risk management. Is the money you will use for these expenses protected from risk factors like:

- The stock market falling or correcting
- Your taxes increasing
- Bond values dropping
- Your tax liability rising

Does your strategy account for future income needs? Wealth protection can be an important focus for people near their retirement age, but a well-thought-out financial plan will consider future income needs, as well. Dependable, lifelong income streams can include:

- Social Security benefits
- Possibly pension payouts
- Money drawn from a retirement portfolio and other sources

Predictability and reliability are two important values in income planning outcomes. If it truly makes sense for your financial profile, guaranteed insurance-based strategies which assure lifelong, permanent income and protect your money from down-markets might be a consideration. Consult your financial adviser to make sure you identify all of the options available based on your unique circumstances and how they fit into your overall retirement plan.

Madison wrestlers finish 4th in final HHC meet

Bilz places 2nd in girls regional, 3rd at HHC

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT
Madison's Kelsey Bilz finished second in the Indiana High School Wrestling Coaches Association Girls Regional on Friday then helped the Cubs to a fourth-place team finish in their final Hoosier Hills Conference meet on Saturday at home.

Madison, which will leave the conference it helped found after the season, had three wrestlers — Jace Walls (120 pounds), Noah Burkhardt (126) and Dalton Berry (195) — finish as runners-up in the HHC meet to earn all-HHC honorable mention selections. As a team, the Cubs scored 171 points, behind conference champion Columbus East (273.5), Floyd Central (220) and Jeffersonville (200.5) but ahead of Jennings County (102), New Albany (98.5), Seymour (76) and Bedford

North Lawrence (74).
“Overall I am glad to see us back in the top tier of teams at the HHC but I know we have a lot of room to improve,” Madison coach Tyson Skinner said.

Bilz, who is ranked second in the state among girls at 106 pounds, lived up to that billing at the regional. After receiving a bye in the quarterfinals, she quickly dispatched sixth-ranked Cora Cain of Hamilton Heights by pin in 20 seconds before falling to top-ranked Mackenzie Smith of Heritage Hills by fall in 5:25 in the championship.

Bilz will get another shot at Smith on Friday in the state finals at Hamilton Heights.

“Kelsey wrestled extremely well but we still have some things to work on,” Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. “She is really opening up and getting a little more dangerous on her feet.”

The Cubs’ Ally Zuckschwerdt competed

at 138 pounds and placed sixth, missing the state finals by two places. After losing her first match, Zuckschwerdt rebounded with three-straight wins before falling 8-4 to Josie Hause of Monrovia in the fifth-place match.

“Ally had the second largest bracket at the south regional. Despite a first round loss, she battled back for a hard fought sixth place finish,” Skinner said. “For a first-year wrestler, she is picking it up super quick. I love her work ethic and her never say die attitude.”

Bilz also wrestled on Saturday in the HHC meet, placing third at 106 pounds. After getting a forfeit in the first round, she suffered a loss in the semifinals but battled back to pin Jeffersonville's John Stivers in 2:10 to claim third.

Walls, ranked eighth in the semistate, picked up pins in his first two matches before falling 9-5 to Floyd Central's Lou Knable — ranked sixth — in the final. Burkhardt also picked up wins by pin in his first two matches before suffering his first loss of the season, 7-0 to third-ranked Paul King of New Albany in the championship. Berry, ranked eighth, got a forfeit and a decision in his first two bouts, then lost 6-3 to Jennings County's Zane Orlieb in the finals.

“Dalton had a lot of adversity in his path this week. Forced to miss the last couple days of practice due to close contact quarantine took a toll on his tank today,” Skinner said.

He still went out and gave it his all. I can't imagine how tough it must be to wrestle in a mask.”

Two other Cubs, Van Skinner and Emmett Wilhite, placed third. Skinner, ranked fourth in the semistate at 170 pounds, lost 12-4 to third-ranked Codei Khawaja of Floyd Central in the semifinals but battled back to claim third. Willhite lost his first match of the day to Columbus East's Tony Ruiz-Tapia at 138 pounds by a fall in 5:54, but battled back and pinned Ruiz-Tapia in 3:00 in the rematch to finish

Wedding invitation snub

Dear Annie: My youngest daughter, “Marta,” is beautiful and caring but intellectually challenged. I have always encouraged all my kids to do what makes them happy, and she is no different. A couple of years ago, she met a wonderful man through mutual friends, “Brian.” After dating for almost a year, they married last fall. We could not ask for anyone more caring and giving. Brian makes Marta his first priority as a spouse, partner and friend in his life.

The reason I’m writing: My second-youngest daughter, “Elle,” who is 27, is getting married this fall and wants to invite Marta but not Brian. Elle and her fiancé would have preferred to skip this whole ordeal altogether and just get married at the courthouse. But they are doing the wedding his parents want (spending money that is supposed to be saved for a down payment on a house, but I digress). Elle has been really stressed out about it from the outset. They said that they are only inviting people they talk to regularly and that Brian isn’t someone they talk to regularly. Brian and Marta were already saving up money for both of them to go. Additionally, Marta is not capable of getting there herself because of her aforementioned disability. I said all this to Elle, but she still said Brian can’t come. I said, “Then maybe we won’t come, either, because it’s not fair that you’re treating your sister this way.” Now Elle is not talking to me or Marta and blocked my number and my messages online.

Am I wrong here? I do understand that they haven’t wanted the wedding from the beginning. But now that they’re having one, I think it would be wrong to exclude her brother-in-law. Family is family, whether you talk every day or not. — Wedding Woes

Dear Wedding Woes: You’re not wrong, but you can’t force them to do what’s right. Though it does strike me as odd to exclude a brother-in-law, this isn’t my wedding — and it’s not yours, either. If Elle and her fiancé don’t want to invite Brian, that’s their mistake to make.

Were I to squint hard to try to see a halfway decent rationale for their actions, I suppose I might focus on the fact that they didn’t want a ceremony or reception to begin with. They may not see this as a big deal or understand how hurtful such a snub can be. As for how they expect Marta to get there when she needs Brian’s assistance while traveling — well, I have no idea what they’re thinking. You and Marta might contact airlines to see what assistance is available for travelers with disabilities, if she’d still like to go. But it would be perfectly OK for her to stay home, too. That would be the bride and groom’s fault and, most of all, their loss.

The other women

Dear Annie: I am an attractive and well-educated divorced woman. Recently, a man whom I dated several years ago contacted me. We are both 70. Our reunion was great. We have been getting along very well and communicating daily ever since. We live across the country from each other. He invited me to his home, where I was his guest for three weeks. When we were alone, we had a wonderful time. We have great chemistry and enjoy each other's company, sense of humor and personality. He tells me that he loves me. I love him, too.

My problem is that during my visit, it became apparent that he has numerous female "friends" (most single, some married) who are neighbors. He talked to them many times a day. They called constantly, and he took the calls privately. He even stopped in the middle of our being intimate to take calls from these women. He confides everything to them and refuses to say "no" to them.

On my last night with him, we had a romantic evening for just the two of us planned at home. He told his "harem" (as he calls his female friends) about our plans, and the women immediately told him they were coming over because they wanted to say goodbye to me. Instantly, his mob of postmenopausal women showed up. A married woman whose husband was out of town kissed my boyfriend on the lips several times, and he kissed her back, in front of me. This was very disrespectful, and it makes me wonder what they do when they are alone with each other, which they sometimes are. None of the women said "goodbye" to me, which was their excuse for monopolizing our evening. Actually, I'm pretty sure it was just a power play on the women's part, to keep my boyfriend and me from having a romantic last evening together.

After they left, I calmly complained to my boyfriend about how he and the married woman had kissed. He said that it was a "Southern thing" and that he was tired of our "discussions." He said the married woman is a "wonderful Southern girl" and said I'd better get along with her because I'll be seeing a lot of her. He berated me because I wanted to spend my last night alone with him and not drinking with the neighbor women.

I love my boyfriend and don't want to lose him, but his female friends are his first priority, and it makes me feel as though my feelings and opinions mean nothing to him. This is the only thing we disagree on. How should I handle this situation? — Cock of the Walk's Chick

Dear Cock of the Walk's Chick: I don't see this proud peacock putting down his plumes any time soon. He seems to love strutting his stuff, lavished with female attention 24/7. More troubling than the flirtatious behavior is the way he reacted when you expressed your concern and frustration. Such dismissiveness shows a fundamental lack of respect for your feelings. If he's not willing to hear you out and do what he can to make you more comfortable with his heavily female flock, then it's time for you to fly the coop.
